'Izzy' Busy, Is He? We'll Say Helzzy; Ask Any Barkeep

Nemesis of Dry Law Violation Doesn't Have to Eat Ham to Catch 'Em.

fsadore Einstein, known far and wide as "Izzy," since he started work as a Prohibition Enforcement Agent under James Shevlin, is fast becoming known as the Nemesis of the unwary barkeep who for a wink and the small matter of 75 cents or so passes over the bar the wherewithal for laying the dust of a dry throat in an arid

Seven men to-day are awaiting arraignment upon charges preferred by "izzy" as proof that he knows-what many parched citizens wish they knew-where to find "the stuff."

"izzy" paid a flying visit to Kingston, N. Y., on Monday. Entering the place of Carl Rogbel, No. 35 Rairoad Avenue, he asked casually for a drink.

"If you are not Prohibition Agent Dinstein, I'll sell you a drink, but you'll have to take a ham sandwich to grove it," Roebel was said to have responded.

The ham was not eaten, "Izzy"

The ham was not eaten, "Izzy" gwore to Assistant Prohibition Enforcement Director Quigley, but he must have satisfied Roebel that it was a case of mistaken identity, for the drink was furnished, "Izzy" declared, and Roebel was arrested.

Motoring to Goshen, "Izzy" visited the New Orange County Hotel, where he demanded two cases of whiskey.

"They thought I was a stableman from the race track," he chortled, "and gave me the whiskey." He afrected Fred Gosseline and James Shields, owners, and Robert Enright, the bartender.

Shields, owners, and Robert Enright the bartender.
Determined to make it a day, "Izzy" stopped at No. 236 East Sist Street when he returned to the city and arrested Michael M. and John M. O'Shaughnessy, father and son, charging them with illegal selling.

Not having had any dealing, for some little time with Irwin Stegeman, he dropped in at his place, No. 1469 Third Avenue, and declares Stegeman falled to recognize him as the agent who had arrested him once before. He arrested Stegeman on a charge of seiling ilquor to him for the second

During the last month "Izzy" has made 123 arrests on selling charges, with a record of sixty-eight arrests for the month previous.

"Is 'Izzy' busy? Is he? We'll say he is," remarked another enforcement

Why Cream Cheese in Hot Weather?

"Philadelphia" Cream Cheese is the perfect summer food. It tickles the most blase appetite, is sustaining as beefsteak, and yet is so light and easily digested that it leaves you cool and satisfied.

Try it tomorrow and give yourself a hot weather treat—"Cheese Scramble" for breakfast; Cream Cheese with crackers and jelly for luncheon; and fordessert at dinner have Cream Cheese with oustard or preserves.

Your grocer or delicatessen has it and most restaurants and hotels serve it. But make sure the name is on the pack-age. There's only one "Philadelphia."

Radiant New Raiment for the School and College Girl

(Duy ways

Editorial reprinted from the New York Tribune of September 1st, 1980.

In a few weeks the shopping districts will be crowded with custo-mers. Retail business will awaken with a start from its Midsummer quiet and steadily gain headway until the crest of the holiday trade is reached. At present compara-tive quietude reigns in stores large and small. While all the new stocks for late Autumn and Win-ter may not be displayed, yet goods of multifarious styles and kinds are evident in lavish profusion, offered, in many instances, at prices below those listed up to

Men and women of thrifty habit sen and women of thirty habit perceive the situation. They are able to inspect goods at leisure. Salespeople, instead of working under high pressure, bave the time to explain details of fabrics, design, workmanship. In this way and in other ways they can assist customers to greater extent now than later, when the rush sets in. Those who can do so may find it worth while to take advantage of exist-

Lower in Price Than Last Year

The tide has turned. Prices are receding. Our Autumn attire for Misses displays finer fabrics, better workmanship and more original styles than last season, yet prices are noticeably lower.

As chic as a Paris creation is each of our new Street Dresses of Tricotine or Serge. Dashing styles adapted from the Moyen Age reveal touches of vivid color in unexpected places, others of demure persuasion are sprinkled with tiny, sparkling beads and still others ally themselves with under-skirts of Satin and take rich embroidery for adornment.

Suits display many rich hues in fabrics soft and velvety and introduce fetching new modes. Three-piece Costume Suits are much in evidence, as well as youthful box styles and belted models. Rich Furs and embroidery adorn many.

Coats and Wraps have an air of sumptuousness that is delightful. They either swathe the figure in classic effects or hang in rippling lines from the shoulder, belted or unbelted. All are topped with huge cape collars, many fashioned of

Refreshing New Fashions in Children's Autumn Hats

In the children's own section, where there are chairs and mirrors just high enough for them, is a beautiful assemblage of Autum's Hats. Picturesque mushroom models, prettily trimmed, roll sailors, off-the-face models, and tams in a variety of color and styles.

There are jaunty little school hats of Felt or Beaver and modish models of Velvet, and Satin with artistic embroidered effects.
